

Residential Street Electric Vehicle Charger Trial Application Form

Wellington City Council is trialling limited numbers of electric vehicle charging points on residential streets where there is demand from residents who lack off-street car parking. The trial project is also supported by Wellington Electricity, the Energy Efficiency and Conservation Authority, and Charge Net NZ.

By signing this form you are applying for Wellington City Council to install a public charging point in your street. The council will review applications for eligibility and will conduct public consultation so that locals are given the opportunity to give feedback on having a charging point installed in your area. The charging point will be available for public use and is not for your exclusive use. It will charge two cars at once. If the application is successful and a charging point is installed, you are also agreeing to purchase an electric car, so that the council has reasonable confidence that the charging point will be used on a regular basis.

Please sign and email this form to ElectricVehicles@wcc.govt.nz. You will be informed of progress and any outcomes around being accepted or declined. The overall process is likely to take at least six months. The likely cost for using the trial charging point is 40c per kWh unit of electricity (incl GST) and may vary in the future. There is no cost to file this application or for its installation.
